The manager of the Dobroflot group of companies, which owns the expeditionary fishing vessel Vsevolod Sibirtsev in Nakhodka, Aleksandr Efremov, told the details of the emergency on the floating base. According to him, as a result of the incident, a worker died, and he also clarified that there was an explosion on the vessel, not a fire, as was previously reported.

"Unfortunately, a welder died. There was no fire, there was a one-time explosion, after which there was a lot of smoke. There is no fire, no flooding, no threat to the vessel at the moment," Efremov said.

A woman who was doing the welding work was also injured in the incident. According to the manager of Dobroflot, the causes of the explosion are being investigated. There is a version that the cylinder used by the welder exploded.

For the 80th anniversary of Victory: Dzhigurda and Deinega released a song about the Great Patriotic War

The inspiration for the composition was a personal family story.

Singer Milena Deynega and actor Nikita Dzhigurda presented a song for the 80th anniversary of the Victory. As the artists told 5-tv.ru, the track is based on a personal family history and a deep connection with the past.

Deinega wrote the lyrics to the song back in 2013, in memory of her grandfathers who fought in the Great Patriotic War.

The impetus to create music came by chance - in 2022, when Deynega and Dzhigurda were traveling together on a train. Milena showed Nikita the poems, and he immediately suggested doing a duet. Already at home, the singer sat down at the piano, quickly composed the music, but she had to work on the arrangement.

"I approved the arrangement for a very long time, until I got goosebumps from what I heard! The arrangement was written by a guy from Belarus named Alexey Borisov," Deynega added.

The track was recorded in the studio in one take. The work was so sincere and complete that even the sound engineer did not take money for the recording.

They decided to shoot the video right after Dzhigurda's concert - on April 28. Deinega's husband, cameraman and lighting designer Mikhail Sokolov, was in charge of the shooting. He also directed the video.

"I had no doubts about whether to participate or not, because, I say again, what Milena Deinega and Mikhail Sokolov are doing, I have seen their work, they are professionals, and the guys have done something that, in my opinion, is worthy of being shown on central channels," said Dzhigurda.

The artist also noted that it was easy to film because the song was real.

"The patriotic theme is complex, but no one pushed us here, no one suggested anything," the actor said.

According to the plot of the video, an elderly soldier sings about the war, and the soul of his dead girlfriend seems to come to life next to him. The scenes - almost without editing - feel the breath of the era. Images, faces, light, even family heirlooms, like the beads of the grandmother of the front-line nurse Tamara Gudkova - everything here carries memory.

"By the way, after filming this video, I dreamed of my grandmother, Tamara Yakovlevna Gudkova, who was a military nurse in the Great Patriotic War, and she told me that I played her in the video, that I gave her a second life in this film," Deinega said.

The video is already collecting positive reviews on social networks. Dzhigurda admitted that he did not change a single frame in the video. Moreover, he now plans to shoot a full-length film with this team based on his own script.

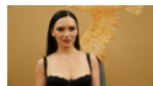

"Nikita Borisovich kept silent in the media for over a year, but now, having returned with dignity with our duet video, he has decided to change his image style globally," the singer concluded.
